In the summer of 1923, Andrew Comyn (Sandy) Irvine (1902-1924), a second-year engineering student at Merton College, Oxford, took part in a university expedition to Eastern Spitsbergen. He was one of a four-man sledging party, led by geologist Noel Odell (1890-1987), with Robert Alexander Frazer (1891-1959) as surveyor. They left the expedition's support ship at Cape Dyum on the north-east coast of Central Island and traversed the unknown and mountainous mainland. After a month spent exploring, they rejoined the ship on the opposite side of the island. Both Odell and Frazer had taken part in the university's first expedition in 1921, but neither Irvine nor the fourth member of the team, his close friend Geoffrey Milling, had any previous Arctic or expedition experience. They had been recruited solely for their strength and fitness, which they owed to being oarsmen. Both rowed in the Oxford boat. Several members of the Alpine Club had given financial support to the Spitsbergen venture, and the club was well represented on the team, for besides Odell and Frazer, Tom Longstaff came as naturalist with the shipboard party. In 1924 Odell was an oxygen officer on the Everest expedition in which George Mallory and Andrew Irvine famously perished during their summit attempt. £200-300

Charles (1948) Prince of Wales & Diana (1961-1997) Princess of Wales. A large slice of cake icing and marzipan base from one of the 23 official wedding cakes made for the Royal Wedding of HRH Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer on Wednesday 29th July 1981, the white icing with a sugared onlay of the Royal Coat-of-Arms coloured in gold, red, blue, and silver, a small silver horseshoe and leaf spray adjacent, some white decorative icing tracery laid on top at head and foot, partly cracked and slight damage to shield of crest and other extremities, approximately 20 x 18 x 4cm, and 800 grams (28 oz) weight, preserved in cling film and supported on a card and tin foil base in an old cake tin with hand-made manuscript paper label signed by M[oyra] Smith taped to lid (Qty: 4)

This layer of cake icing was given to Moyra Smith, an employee to the Queen Mother at Clarence House. Moyra began her career at Clarence House in the kitchen before moving on to more general duties on the recommendation of Lady Jean Rankin. Besides the main official five-tier wedding cake, some 22 other wedding cakes were supplied by various manufacturers and this seems likely to have been one sent to Clarence House for the consumption of the Queen Mother's staff. In view of its size, it is most likely that it was either from the side of a cake, or from the top of a single-tier cake.

This slice of 40-year-old cake icing was acquired from Dominic Winter Auctioneers on 27 August 2008 (lot 301) when it was sold on behalf of Moyra's family. It appears to be in exactly the same good condition as when originally sold, but we advise against eating it, and the royal letter and bottle of commemorative beer that accompanied the lot are not present. However, included here are printed Ceremonial and Order of Service programmes for the wedding in St Paul's Cathedral, and a memorial Royal Wedding Breakfast programme for Buckingham Palace, all 29 July 1981. £200-300

Anja Thauer was a young German cellist on the brink of stardom in the 1960s. She won the Grand Prix at the Paris Conservatoire, signed with Deutsche Grammophon, released two critically acclaimed albums, and toured internationally. And then came a tragic end, she took her own life in 1973, aged 28, after starting an affair with a married doctor in Wiesbaden. Five days later, he took his own life. Often regarded as the German Jacqueline Du Pré, their stories have uncanny similarities. They were the same age, studied together at the Paris Conservatoire, and their careers both ended in 1973 - when Thauer died and du Pré was diagnosed with MS. Thauer remains a cult figure among collectors of rare records. £150-200
